Dear Mr. Ellsberg:

I keep phoning when you're in Washington or in transit and missing you. I'll try again when I'm in Boston in another week or so.

Many thanks for your material, which finally arrived after being held by the post office for two weeks. I thought your Senate testimony was very well taken.

I've written to the New Yorker and Esquire as the most likely candidates for a long piece on Chau, and I'm hoping for a favorable response. If I can drum up interest, I definitely would like to talk to you before writing the article.

Cordially,

Elizabeth Pond
